

If you need MyMathLab or MyStatLab access for your Math or Stat course this semester (Fall 09), and the bookstore is temporarily out, here is what you should do:

Step 1. Decide which of the two following options you want:

Option 1. Buy an access code, which provides access to the online homework and the online textbook, but does not include a paper copy of the textbook.

Option 2. Buy a bundle that includes not only online homework access and online textbook access, but also includes a paper copy of the textbook.

Step 2. If you want Option 1, buy the online access from www.coursecompass.com. You do not need to wait for the bookstore to get any additional shipments of anything.

If you want Option 2, then do the following.

Go to www.pearsonhighered.com/mmlspecialaccess

You will be asked for your email, name, instructor's name, course name, course ID, school, and zip code.

Once you submit that information, you will receive an email back from Customer Technical Support within 48 hours. This email will give you temporary access to MyMathLab or MyStatLab.

Students choosing with temporary access will have 17 days to buy a hardcopy MyMathLab/MyStatLab access kit/textbook bundle (Option 2 above) or buy a simple access code from the bookstore, to extend their subscription for the semester. Caution: You cannot extend this temporary access by buying an access code online through www.coursecompass.com; so if you have obtained temporary access and decide to only purchase the online (Option 1), buy it from the bookstore.