III. DEGREES/EMPHASIS AND CURRICULAR REQUIREMENTS:

- a. Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.): The Doctor of Philosophy degree includes a minimum of 96 graduate credits beyond the Baccalaureate, including 24 hours of dissertation. Doctoral students in the Department of Counseling and Educational Psychology should expect their programs to exceed the minimum number of hours required by the university. A typical doctoral program for Doctor of Philosophy is 116 graduate credits, which includes transferring in up to 24 graduate credits from the candidate's masters degree. A residency requirement of at least two consecutive regular semesters with a minimum of 9 graduate credits must be completed. The primary focus of the Doctor of Philosophy program is on research skills. The dissertation must represent original and independent investigation that reflects a contribution to knowledge. The dissertation must also reflect mastery of research skills and an ability to select a significant problem for investigation.
- b. Doctor of Education (Ed.D.): The Doctor of Education degree includes a minimum of 90 semester credits beyond the baccalaureate degree, including 12 hours of dissertation. The Ed.D. candidate may transfer up to 30 credits earned for their masters degree. Doctoral students in the Department of Counseling and Educational Psychology should expect their programs to exceed the minimum number of hours required by the university. A residency requirement of at least two consecutive semesters with a minimum of 12 graduate credits must be completed. The primary focus of the Doctor of Education program is on practitioner skills. The dissertation must involve scholarly and practical considerations of a professional problem, and dissertation topics may include, but are not limited to, practical educational experiences, directed field experiences, or scholarly approaches to educational problems with an emphasis upon theoretical implication.

- c. Curricular Requirements: The curricular requirements for Ph.D. and Ed.D. degrees include coursework, a qualifying exam, a comprehensive exam, a dissertation, and an oral defense of the dissertation. However, the specific form of these requirements is different, depending upon which doctoral program is selected. As stated, up to 30 graduate credits may be applied towards the Ph.D. and Ed.D. degrees.

- (1) Qualifying Examination: Both Ph.D. and Ed.D. degree programs require the student to pass a Qualifying Examination.

Ph.D. degree candidates are required to pass a one-hour qualifying examination conducted within the first semester of matriculation. The examination is an oral exam and is conducted by the student's Advisory Committee.

Ed.D. degree candidates must submit a videotape of a counseling session. The tape will be reviewed by the student's Advisory Committee.

- (2) The CEP faculty reserves the right to determine which doctoral program the candidate will accepted into (Ph.D. and Ed.D.)

- (3) Comprehensive Examination: Both Ph.D. and Ed.D. degree candidates must complete and pass a written comprehensive examination. For both programs, the comprehensive examination cannot occur until at least 30 or more content course hours are completed.

Written Component of the Comprehensive Examination

Ph.D. degree: the comprehensive examination consists of 12 hours of written examination. The exam consists of three consecutive days of 4 hours each. The first two days concentrate on the student's core coursework, and the third day consists of the student's specialty area.

Ed.D. degree: the comprehensive examination consists of a professional research paper. The student will submit a topic to be agreed upon by the Advisory Committee and the student. This paper should be independent of the student's dissertation topic. Once the topic is approved the student has 3 weeks to write and submit the examination. The length of the paper should not exceed 20 double-spaced pages.

Oral Component of the Comprehensive Examination

Ph.D. degree candidates must take and pass a 2-hour oral examination. This 2-hour examination should be conducted within 3 weeks of passing the written component and is conducted by the student's Advisory Committee. The nature and scope of the Examination is to be determined by the student's Advisory Committee.

Ed.D. degree candidates have an optional oral examination.

- (4) Dissertation: As mentioned earlier, in the sections on "Doctor of Philosophy" and "Doctor of Education," all doctoral candidates must complete a dissertation.

Ph.D. degree candidates must take 24 hours of dissertation.

Ed.D. degree candidates must take 12 hours of dissertation.

- (5) Oral Dissertation Defense Examination: All doctoral students must defend their dissertation in an oral examination.
