COURSE DESCRIPTION
SW 424 is one of a four-course sequence that emphasizes the competent application of skills, knowledge and values to social work practice. This course focuses on developing competency in intervening with couples and families. Students will learn how to engage in each stage of the social work intervention process with couples and families, including: rapport building, exploration, assessment, planning, implementation, goal attainment, evaluation and termination. This course furthers students’ understanding of the strengths-based, generalist social work perspective. Special emphasis is placed on analyzing the ways in which client characteristics (i.e., biological, psychological and socioeconomic factors as well as class, gender, ethnicity, culture, and sexual orientation) interact with the resources and demands of the environment in identifying appropriate intervention strategies. Students will be asked to use critical thinking skills to identify and implement interventions with couples and families that are evidenced-informed, as well as contextually and culturally relevant.

COURSE LINKAGES
This course is designed to build upon the knowledge, values and skills you acquired in SW 321—Basics of Professional Communication. To facilitate your understanding of evidenced-informed practice, it is taken with or after completion of SW 440—Principals of Evidenced Informed Practice I. This course also draws upon the knowledge you have gained in previous theory courses (e.g., SW 310 HBSE I, SW 311 HBSE II, Psychology 101, and so forth). Ultimately, it fosters your development as a generalist practitioner who utilizes a variety of social work theories and approaches in working with micro client systems.

This course satisfies UNR’s CO12: ETHICS
Students will demonstrate understanding of the ethical principles in general or in application of specialized knowledge, results of research, creative expression, or design processes. Students will demonstrate an ability to recognize, articulate, and apply ethical principles in various academic, professional, social, or personal contexts.

Instructional Methods
This course will implement a variety of collaborative learning techniques. Some of these techniques will include: lecture, class discussion, small group activities, role plays, fishbowl activities and videos.

Course Policies
- Class Attendance and Participation: As much of the learning in this class is dependent upon class member contributions, you will be expected to come prepared and ready to actively participate in every class meeting. Active participation will include: involvement in class activities and discussions, timeliness to class, and collegial conduct.

Students who miss 2 class sessions will lose 10 points. Students who miss 3 class sessions will lose 15 points. Those students who miss 4 or more class sessions will receive a grade of “F” for the course.

- Disabilities: Students who have documented disabilities that may affect their learning or performance in this class should contact the UNR Disability Services Office (Thompson Student Services Building, room 101). The instructor will make all those accommodations that are requested in writing by the aforementioned office.

- Academic Success Services: Your student fees cover usage of the Math Center (784-4433 or www.unr.edu/mathcenter/), Tutoring Center (784-6801 or www.unr.edu/tutoring/), and University Writing Center (784-6030 or www.unr.edu/writing_center). These centers support your classroom learning; it is your responsibility to take advantage of their services. A central component of this class entails pre-professional simulations. To enhance learning and skill growth these simulations will be recorded by the Instructor. The Instructor and classmates may view these recordings to provide students feedback on skill use. All recordings will be destroyed upon the conclusion of the class and recordings will be used only for the purposes of feedback within this class. Students will sign a release to record at the start of the first class.

Course Requirements

Required Readings: You will be expected to have completed all assigned readings prior to the class session. Assigned readings can be found in the Course Calendar.

Assignments

In-Class Activities
As this class focuses largely on skill development, you will be graded on your demonstration of these skills in class. These assignments will be completed in class and will be worth 3 points each. There will be a total of ten such assignments spread throughout the semester. Examples of topics for the assignments include: provision of peer feedback, accurate reporting of a brief exchange, use of open-ended questioning, ability to paraphrase or summarize, identification of feelings in interaction, use of a level four empathetic response, and cultural humility. Students must be present in the class to complete the assignments. Make-up assignments will not be provided.

Midterm and Final Exams
There will be two exams given during the semester. These exams will consist of short answer, application and essay questions. Questions will be designed to elicit your understanding of the skills, values and knowledge relevant to work with couples and families. The dates for these exams are noted in the Course Calendar. Each exam is worth 50 points. Make-up exams will only be given to students who experience an unexpected emergency. Students requesting make-up exams must present documentation supporting their need to miss the original exam date.

Family Assessment and Caseplan
Students will complete a thorough assessment of a family either from their field placement or a non-relative family using several empirically validated tools as well as traditional genograms, family timelines and ecomaps. Students will incorporate theoretical and research findings to support their assessments. The assessment should form the basis of a thorough caseplan. The caseplan should include evidence-informed intervention strategies. A complete outline for this assignment will be handed out in class. This assignment is worth 70 points. Twenty of these points will be awarded based upon clarity of writing, correct use of APA, and correct grammar, punctuation and spelling.
