One aimless walk through Ormeau Park. One cold gray autumn morning. A diamond bright came into sight. Just like a jewel shone. Her sapphire eyes did hypnotize. You cast on me a spell. And ruby lips I longed to kiss, but had not the nerve to tell.

00:58

You are my Belfast love. There’s no one above you. You’re my Belfast belle, you see, there’s no one but you for me, and I will love you endlessly. You my Belfast love.

1:38

When you greeted me so graciously. You set my heart aglow, like a child I was beguiled. I just had to know your name and from where you came and with me would you go. To the end of time would you be mine? To let this blossom grow.

2:18

You are my Belfast love. There’s no one above you. You’re my Belfast belle, you see, there’s no one but you for me, and I will love you endlessly. You my Belfast love.

Come take my hand across this land. I’d fly you to the moon. Sail with me the seven seas. Each day would end too soon, and if we are graced with young this story to them I will tell-- How we first kissed in the autumn mist, how deep in love I fell.

4:19

You are my Belfast love. There’s no one above you. You’re my Belfast belle, you see, there’s no one but you for me, and I will love you endlessly. You my Belfast love.
