Gentlemen it is me duty to inform you of one beauty. Though I'd ask of you a favor not to seek her for a while. Though I own she is a creature of character and feature, no words can paint the picture of the queen of all Argyll. If you could have seen her there, boys, if you had just been there, the swan was in her movements and the marvel in her smile. All the roses in the garden, they bow and ask her pardon. For not one could match the beauty of the Queen of all Argyll.

The evening that I mentioned, I passed with light intention through a part of our dear country known for beauty and for style, In the place of noble thinkers of scholars and great drinkers, but above them all for splendor shone the Queen of all Argyll. If you could have seen her there, boys, if you had just been there, the swan was in her movements and the marvel in her smile. All the roses in the garden, they bow and ask her pardon. For not one could match the beauty of the Queen of all Argyll.

So my lads I needs must leave you. My intentions no' to grieve you, nor indeed would I deceive you. Oh, I'll see you in a while. I must find some way to gain her, to court her and attain her. I fear my heart's in danger from the Queen of all Argyll. If you could have seen her there, boys, if you had just been there, the swan was in her movements and the marvel in her smile. All the roses in the garden, they bow and ask her pardon. For not one could match the beauty of the Queen of all Argyll.
